I'm PEOPO!

I'm the MPD's mascot designed with the theme of "a trustworthy and community-friendly MPD." My name comes from the words "people" and "police."

Events

- Join us for various events to find out more about the MPD during Golden Week holidays and your summer break. Special exhibitions themed around police are also held.

*Visit the MPD website for more information.

Welcome to the Police Museum

- The Police Museum displays an array of exhibits tracing the history of the Japanese police from its birth to the present, and introduces you to the current activities of the Metropolitan Police Department. The Museum is the place where you can see, learn, and experience the MPD.
- Explore the life and work of the MPD's founder and its first Superintendent General Toshiyoshi Kawaji, major cases in the Department's history, and changes in police uniforms and equipment. You'll also be introduced to the MPD's personnel assigned to various fields of police service.
- Have fun learning what it's like to be a police officer with child-friendly attractions, such as animation movies and police-work simulators.
- For international visitors, most exhibits are displayed with English captions.
- Audio guides are available.
