TRAINING FUTURE OFFICERS FOR THE RESPONSIBILITY OF PRESERVING PUBLIC SAFETY

The Metropolitan Police Academy is an educational institute for young cadets to build the foundations necessary to be a police officer and master the practical skills required for law enforcement. Once accepted by the TMPD, Category I cadets (equivalent to college graduates) must take a 6-month training course, while Category III cadets (equivalent to high school graduates) must take a 10-month training course. The academy is a boarding school (single rooms only), and all cadets are required to lead an orderly life. They spend their days attending lectures and training, practicing martial arts and learning to use handguns.
