Promoting the wholesome growth of juveniles

In cooperation with local communities, schools, and relevant agencies and organizations, the TMPD is working to prevent juvenile delinquency and victimization on social media. Moreover, in order to foster a society that takes a more active interest in its youth, we try to promote their healthy growth by conducting a range of police activities such as giving guidance on the streets and facilitating crime prevention classes.

TMPD Juvenile Centers

To prevent juvenile delinquency from recurring and rehabilitate juveniles, the eight TMPD Juvenile Centers in Tokyo actively give guidance on the streets and encourage juveniles to participate in various hands-on activities such as agricultural experiences. Additionally, we provide them with assistance for education and employment.

Furthermore, the Centers employ counseling specialists with expertise and provide continuous and detailed counseling for them.

Measures to eliminate the harmful environment surrounding juveniles

Juveniles' excessive fascination with lesser-known underground male chika idols and their close proximity can expose naïve youth to a range of exploitive consequences. This overzealous support disrupts their lives, often leading to financial waste and contributing to juvenile delinquency and victimization. In addition to promoting public awareness through social media, we are cracking down on illegal businesses and strengthening measures to eliminate the harmful environment surrounding juveniles.

HANDLING CASES RELATED TO PERSONAL SAFETY

When handling cases related to personal safety (such as when it is necessary to protect the victim immediately, as in instances of stalking, domestic violence, missing/abducted people, abuse of children, the elderly or disabled, and precursory cases that may lead to sexual crimes against children or women), the TMPD takes protective measures to ensure the security of victims and involved parties, and works to promptly identify and catch the perpetrators.
