

CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION BUREAU

Arriving at the crime scene

Collecting video footage from a street security camera

Door-to-door inquiry

PROFESSIONALS INVESTIGATING CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

Living up to citizens' expectations

Reporting on the radio

Crime scene investigation

There are many crimes that pose a threat to us in Tokyo: robberies, sex crimes, telecom frauds, and burglaries. The TMPD is working to understand and analyze these crimes in detail. We encourage swift and precise investigations, heading to crime scenes promptly and utilizing the latest investigation methods in order to solve cases as soon as possible.

Appeals to the public for assistance and information in solving cases

We would greatly appreciate your cooperation in providing any information leading to the arrest of suspects

Scan the 2-D bar code for the List of Open Investigations (with years of occurrence, only in Japanese).

Scan the 2-D bar code for more information on the Special Reward Program for Investigations (Public Bounty Program).

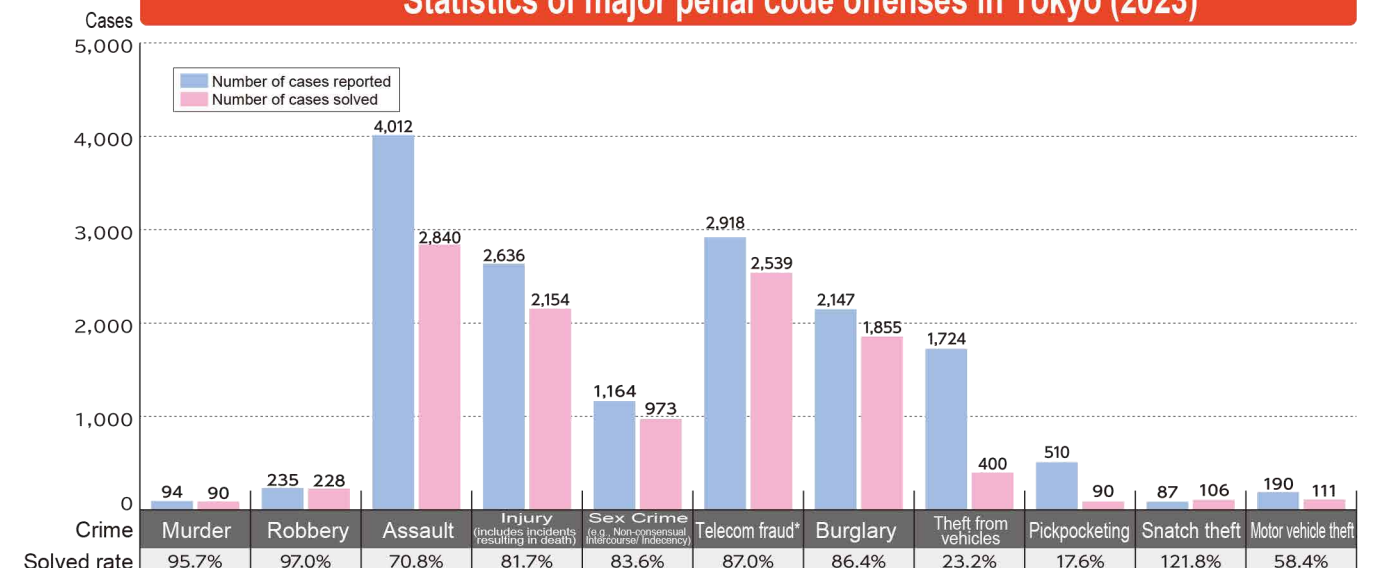

Statistics concerning penal code offenses in Tokyo (2023)

In 2023, 89,098 penal code offenses (not including traffic accidents) were reported in Tokyo.

The solved rates for major penal code offenses are as follows: 95.7% for murder, 97.0% for robbery, and 86.4% for burglary (e.g., break-ins at houses and stores).

Statistics of major penal code offenses in Tokyo (2023)

*Telecom fraud is a general term for a type of fraud in which the perpetrator sends e-mail to or calls the victim, claiming to be a relative or an official of a public institution. The perpetrator then defrauds the victim of cash or e-money, ATM cards, or deceives the victim saying that the victim can receive a refund of medical expenses and makes the victim operate an ATM to send money to the perpetrator's account.

*The number of cases solved includes cases which were reported in previous years. For this reason, some crimes may have a solved rate of more than 100 percent.